Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council

Last week the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council made its first out-of-town visit since it began operations as a federal granting Council in April 1978.

Members of the Council, plus representatives of its Advisory Academic Panel and senior Council staff, visited Alberta 23 and 24 October to meet with officials and faculty of The University of Alberta, Athabasca University, University of Calgary and Lethbridge University, and with representatives of the provincial Department of Advanced Education and Manpower.

According to president André Fortier, the purpose of the out-of-town meeting was to gain first-hand information about the problems and concerns of university administrators, faculty and graduate students and to provide information about Council programs.

"We are anxious to find out if our programs are meeting the needs of Alberta scholars—if enough potential applicants, indeed, know about them—and in what ways the programs might be improved. Perhaps the details of various programs are imperfectly understood; perhaps the regulations are considered unwieldy. We shall be interested in hearing what the problems are and will strive to correct misconceptions and consider suggestions for improvement."

According to figures released for the meetings the number of awards to Alberta scholars in the SSHRC's fellowships and research grants programs has been declining over the past few years.

The number of research grants and fellowships totalled 81 in 1979-80, down from 106 in 1977-78. Comparable figures for the country as a whole have held steady at 1,647 and 1,644 over the same period.

Breaking down these figures, the number of SSHRC Research Grants (to individual scholars or groups of scholars) in Alberta universities dropped from 43 in 1977-78 to 38 in 1979-80. The total for all universities in Canada rose from 572 to 603. In dollar amounts, the comparable figures for Alberta are $470,209 in 1977-78 and $413,679 in 1979-80; for the country as a whole, $6.2 million and $7.2 million, respectively.

The same downward trend in Alberta scholars' participation in Council programs is evident in fellowships and scholarships. The number of Leave Fellowships awarded (to university faculty to undertake specific projects of research or other scholarly activity), by university affiliation, dropped from twenty-four to sixteen last year. The number of fellowship holders from The University of Alberta declined from 18 to 6. At the University of Calgary the number rose slightly from 6 to 9. The University of Lethbridge, which received no Leave Fellowship awards in 1977-78, received one in each of the two succeeding years. The all-Canada figures for 1977-78 and 1979-80 were 382 and 408, respectively.

The SSHRC supports through a Negotiated Grant a cooperative project of the Universities of Alberta, Calgary, and Sherbrooke. The project involves the compilation and edition of all Louis Riel's writing. The collected papers will eventually be published in a ten-volume set, bilingually, in 1984-85.

In the Council's largest single program, Doctoral Fellowships, which accounted for $8.3 million in awards last year, the number of first awards to Alberta scholars (by university of affiliation at the time of application) declined from 37 in 1977-78 to 23 in 1979-80. The University of Alberta's share dipped from 26 to 13 over the three-year period; Lethbridge's from one in each of the first two years to none in 1979-80, and Calgary's share stayed the same, at 10. The decline in the number of first awards in the SSHRC Doctoral Fellowship competition is, however, reflected in the country as a whole: the number of these awards slipped from 604 to 537 in the three-year period under review.

In the Councils' Special MA Scholarships program, which awards roughly 100 scholarships a year, Alberta increased its share from 2 in 1977-78 to 6 in 1978-79, and dropped back to 4 last year. In 1978-79, there were award holders from each of the Universities of Alberta, Calgary and Lethbridge. The 4 awards in 1979-80 were shared equally between the two larger universities.

A brighter statistical picture of Alberta's participation in the Council's Research Grants program emerges from an examination of the number of requests for grants in relation to the number of awards—what the Council calls the "success rate." The success rate in the Research Grants program for Alberta universities taken as a whole rose slightly between 1977-78 and 1979-80—from 67.7 to 70 percent. The rate for The University of Alberta declined (from 73.9 to 54.2 percent), and improved for the Universities of Calgary and Lethbridge (from 67.6 to 84 percent for Calgary; from 40 to 100 percent for Lethbridge).

The Council's data analysis, says André Fortier, is a gauge of how well Council programs are serving the scholarly community in Canada and, ultimately, the cause of research and scholarship generally. "If downward trends appear—as is evident in some programs and in some areas—we launch investigations of why this might be so. At present we are examining our Doctoral Fellowship program, for example, to determine whether or not it is meeting the needs of graduate students in this country and fulfilling one of its prime purposes—that is, supplying good scholars for our much-hoped-for expanded research effort in the humanities and social sciences. One of the questions we are asking in our current survey of former doctoral fellowship holders, for instance, is whether or not the jobs which the doctoral fellows received after they won their degrees are in universities and are research-related."

The SSHRC, one of three federal granting councils, paid out some $32.8 million in fellowships and grants in 1979-80, with roughly 5 percent of this going to Alberta Universities. Full-time university faculty in the humanities and social sciences in Alberta universities in 1977-78 numbered 1,599, compared with 17,801 for all of Canada—or some 9 percent of all scholars in these disciplines. □

International Conference on Learning Disabilities

The University of Alberta in cooperation with IBM Canada is sponsoring an International Conference on Theory and Research in Learning Disability.

The conference, which will have about 125 participants, will be held at the Renford Inn on Whyte (Majestic Room) on Thursday, 13 November, and move to the Northern Alberta Jubilee Auditorium (Social Room) on Friday, 14 November.

The major focus of the conference will be on theory and research information that will provide new directions for further program development.

Four topics will be examined in detail. They are definition and identification of learning disability, cognitive dysfunctions, reading process and product, and psychomotor aspects.

Twelve internationally recognized authorities from the disciplines of psychology, education, medicine, and motor development will address the conference. The speakers include Dr. Barbara Keogh, University of California at Los Angeles; Dr. John Hagen, University of Michigan; Dr. Peter Bryant, Oxford University; and

Dr. H.T.A. Whiting, Vrije Universiteit in Amsterdam.

Conference organizers say that the topics discussed will be of particular interest to university and college staff members and school supervisory and policy-making consultants who are responsible for the implementation and evaluation of programs for children with learning disabilities.

For more information on the conference contact Dr. J.P. Das, or Dr. R. Mulcahy at 432-4439, or Dr. A.E. Wall at 432-3567. □

L.A. Kosinski, Geography, has chaired a Symposium on Migration and Population Development in Asia and the Pacific Region held in Nagoya, Japan, in conjunction with the 24th International Geographical Congress. (A congress held every four years). He also chaired a session and presented an invited paper on "Population trends in developed countries" at the main congress in Tokyo.

Lyndal Osborne, Art and Design, is one of two artists whose work was recently exhibited at the Banff School of Fine Arts' Walter Phillips Gallery. The exhibition was opened on 2 October and lasted until 19 October. Organized by Joan Borsa, Director of the Students' Union Art Gallery, the exhibition also featured the work of Rebecca Burke, formerly of Edmonton and now at Mount Allison University, New Brunswick.

Raymond U. Lemieux, Department of Chemistry, has been named "The Walter J. Chute Distinguished Lecturer in Chemistry for 1980" at Dalhousie University. Dr. Lemieux, who is renowned for his work on the synthesis of oligosaccharides and in the development of immuno-adsorbents, delivered three research lectures and a less technical paper in the Department of Chemistry, Dalhousie University, from 20 to 23 October. The lecture series is supported by Dalhousie University and the Xerox Research Centre of Canada. It is named after a distinguished former head of department at Dalhousie University, who retired in 1979.

Milan V. Dimic, Professor and Acting Chairman of the Department of Comparative Literature, has been re-elected to the Coordinating Committee of the International Comparative Literature Association responsible for the Association's multi-volume Comparative History of Literature in European Languages. Also, he has been appointed to the Publications Committee, directing all ICLA scholarly editions.

On 16 September, J. Lauber of the Department of English presented a paper, "Truth-telling as Politics: Byron and Pound," at the 7th International Symposium of the Byron Society, University of Salzburg, Austria.

George E. Ball, Chairman, Department of Entomology, was awarded the Gold Medal of the Entomological Society of Canada at its annual meeting in Quebec City on 6 October. This Medal is presented annually for outstanding achievement in Canadian entomology.

Dr. Ball joined the faculty of The University of Alberta in 1954, after completing graduate studies at Cornell University and became Chairman of his Department in 1974. He has earned an international reputation for his research on the systematics, phylogeny and zoogeography of North and Middle American Carabidae.

Many of his former graduate students now occupy important positions in museums and universities in a number of countries. Dr. Ball has published more than fifty scientific papers and treatises that are notable for their breadth, clarity and depth of analysis. In addition to his own writing, he has edited reference volumes, and now serves as editor of the entomological journal Quaestiones Entomologicae.

Dr. Ball is a Past President of the Entomological Society of Alberta, and of the Coleopterists Society, and has served on numerous committees of the Entomological Society of Canada. He is a Fellow of the Entomological Society of Canada and of the Biological Research Institute of America.

He is the second recipient of this award in the Department of Entomology, the late Dr. Brian Hocking having been similarly recognized in 1973.

John McDougall, for personal and business reasons, has found it necessary to step down from the Chairmanship of the Commission on University Purpose.

The Executive Committee of Senate has appointed Dave Usher as Chairman, and Reg Basken as Vice-Chairman. Mr. McDougall is continuing to serve as a member of the Commission.

S. Kumar, Department of Physical Therapy, attended the 33rd Annual Conference of Engineering in Medicine and Biology in Washington, DC from 30 September to 3 October 1980. Dr. Kumar presented two papers at this conference: "The Laryngectomy and the Back" and "Spinal Supports for Laryngectomy." Dr. Kumar also presented an invited seminar at the University of Toronto on 29 September 1980. The title of his seminar was

"Biomechanics—Its Synthesis, Taxonomy, and Integration."

Margaret Steed, Professor and Associate Dean of the Faculty of Nursing, recently made a presentation in a seminar at the Conference on Mental Health held in Banff from 19 to 22 October. Professor Steed addressed the topic "Why Ethical Codes?"

On 8 September, Mrs. Barbara Horowitz, with assistance from executive members of the Faculty Women's Club, entertained the new faculty women and the wives of the new faculty members of The University of Alberta. Coffee and refreshments were served.

Gary D. Prideaux, Chairman of the Department of Linguistics, participated in the Eighth International Conference on Computational Linguistics held in Tokyo, Japan from 29 September to 4 October 1980. The title of his presentation was "The role of perceptual strategies in the comprehension of English relative clauses." During his stay in Japan, Dr. Prideaux also presented an invited paper entitled "Cognitive strategies in psycholinguistics studies" at Fukushima University on 25 September 1980.

James R. Barclay, Chairman and Professor, Department of Educational Psychology and Counselling, University of Kentucky at Lexington, visited the Centre for Advanced Study in Theoretical Psychology the week of 25 September. Dr. Barclay, who is the author of the well-known Foundations of Counseling Strategies, spoke on the influence of Franz Brentano on Sigmund Freud and on problems of individual and classroom assessment.

Rom Harré, Departments of Philosophy and Experimental Psychology, University of Oxford, presented a series of seminars on social change and ethnomethodology at the Centre for Advanced Study in Theoretical Psychology 11 to 15 September 1980.

Winter visitors are welcome at

RUTHERFORD HOUSE

11153 Saskatchewan Drive

In 1911 Alexander Cameron Rutherford, Alberta's first premier and founder of the University of Alberta, built this stately mansion. You can almost see a graduating class seated on the central oak staircase listening to Rutherford's address, an occasion that came to be called the Founder's Day Tea.

Furnished and restored to its original beauty, Rutherford House now rests on the modern campus of the University of Alberta, an enduring legacy from another era.
